Garage Door Upgrades Offer Superior Return on Investment

We'd like to share a recent article from the DASMA Door & Access Systems newsmagazine highlighting the excellent value that upgrading a home's garage doors can offer the homeowner.

The article summarizes a report showing that updating a garage door is one of the least expensive remodeling projects you can do and that brings one of the highest returns on the investment when selling your home.

Information like this can help your customers recognize low cost, high return and high curb appeal remodeling opportunities they may have overlooked. This is good for everyone's business!

Providing your customers or installers with copies of this article may be just the spark needed to grow sales in today's tough economy. A link to the original article is available here for your convenience.
